Oregonians swell with pride when talking about the best our state has to offer. Not just the beautiful outdoor destinations or the quality of life, but the products we create here, too.

For 2023, we celebrate the people who practice and master their craft to make these products come alive. People devoted to the process, always seeking improvements while honoring tradition. Creating the goods that make Oregon feel like home.

From beloved foods to functional works of art, these products—and the workers who make them—reflect the character of their communities and help define a sense of place.

Join us as we celebrate this dedication and their pursuit of passion.

Studio Sign Co. | PORTLAND | studiosignco.com

Sign artist Nick Lee assumed the helm of Studio Sign Company in 2018 from his father, Melvin Lee, who retired after 50 years as a commercial sign painter. Nick continues offering signs created using traditional techniques like hand lettering or gold leaf gilding, while also embracing modern technology and methods.

Their work adorns restaurants and businesses across Oregon, and even atop the street signs in the Lents neighborhood where the studio is located.

Tru Form Tiny | EUGENE | truformtiny.com

With their sleek designs, abundant windows, and use of natural elements like pine, cedar, and hickory for built-in furniture, you'd never know Tru Form Tiny homes can take only eight weeks to construct from start to finish.

Headquartered in Eugene, Tru Form Tiny has just over 50 employees on the warehouse floor and in their offices and has shipped homes as far away as Texas.

"Some people just don't want to manage a full-size home," says Jen Carroll, who co-owns Tru Form Tiny with his wife, Malia. "It's a great option for so many."

Washed Ashore | BANDON | washedashore.org

Guided by their motto: "Art to save the sea," Washed Ashore uses larger-than-life sculptures and educational programs to sound the alarm about plastic pollution littering ocean beaches the world over.

The unique sculptures start from plastic debris gathered by volunteers on coastal shores before being sorted by color, assembled into larger pieces by volunteers, and finished by sculpture builders. They've completed 85 sculptures and have more in the works.

Abbey Creek Vineyard | NORTH PLAINS | abbeycreekvineyard.com

With "HipHop, Wine & Chill" emblazoned above the bar, a DJ booth in the corner, and wines with emblematic but disarming nicknames, Abbey Creek Vineyard is top to bottom a creation from the mind of owner Bertony Faustin.

Faustin, Oregon's first recorded Black winemaker, and his crew aim to create an unparalleled experience in the world of Oregon wines by building a more inclusive and approachable environment at their North Plains and downtown Portland tasting rooms.

Homestead Log Homes | CENTRAL POINT | homesteadloghomes.com

For more than 40 years, Homestead Log Homes has been building log homes to fit any size or need. The homes are pre-assembled at their Central Point plant, then broken down and shipped to the building site for quick and exacting assembly.

These are more than sized-up Lincoln Logs. Over time, workers at the company have developed and honed different construction methods, which create a better product over the lifespan of the home and provide the customer with a range of finished styles and designs.

Rogue Creamery | CENTRAL POINT | roguecreamery.com

After taking top honors at the World Cheese Awards in 2019, Rogue Creamery has continued to garner attention on the world stage. The company's Bluehorn blue cheese was awarded a Super Gold medal in 2022.

Beyond awards, the company, both certified organic and Oregon's first B Corporation, prides itself on a commitment to sustainability, the environment, and giving back to the community. Through its 'Cheese Is Love' giving campaign, every purchase of this extra-aged cheddar funds the donation of a block of the same amount to help feed southern Oregon families in need.

Lincoln City Glass Center | LINCOLN CITY | lincolncityglasscenter.com

Tucked beside a busy section of Highway 101 in the Taft area of Lincoln City on the Oregon coast, the Lincoln City Glass Center welcomes all those curious about glass blowing—and Lincoln City's famous glass floats.

In this half art gallery and half glass-blowing studio, visitors can purchase works from one of the many artists on display, or take a guided session with a staff glass blower to take home an artwork of their own vision.
